

What is the real agenda of the Tea Party?

The Tea Party movement on Long Island has more in common with the Mad Hatter in Alice in Wonderland than it does with the patriots of the American Revolution. It has aligned itself with the most conservative and anti-worker representatives in the U.S. Congress. Cleverly marketed by its right wing organizers as a populist movement fed up with government, it actually stands for an agenda aimed squarely at our unions.

Here's an information tool box to help you understand what they are really against.

Tea Party advocates on Long Island have disrupted town hall meetings that were set up by Democrats in Congress to talk about job creation and health care. They used verbal insults and intimidation to shut down any meaningful dialogue on the issues. A closer look shows that their goals are closely associated with right wing think tanks and ultra-conservative politicians.

Bring America Back to Work! Don't be fooled by the rhetoric of those who work against our interests. Use this toolbox to expose the Tea Party's anti-labor agenda. When you know the facts, you can make better decisions for yourself and your family.
